

Neeta Delaney Usually when you hear about the foreclosure crisis in the media, they don't say "mortgage foreclosure crisis", but they mean mortgage foreclosure crisis. Michigan is unique. We not only have a mortgage foreclosure crisis, we have a tax foreclosure crisis.

If we can just get the word out to people and they can just remember one thing, and that is miforeclosureresponse.org, then everything else will flow from there.

Regardless of what your relationship is to the foreclosure crisis, this website has been designed to provide you with all the information that you need, the resources that are available to you, strategies that are working in other communities, and actual best practices and best ideas that are working with contact information so that you can find out and actually pick up a phone or email somebody in another community to find out what is working in their community.

The scope of the information on this website is also unique because it not only deals with mortgage foreclosures and tax foreclosures and how to prevent each of those kinds of foreclosures, it also includes information on how you respond to all the damage that the foreclosures have already done in our communities.

So it's a one stop shop, it's Michigan specific, and there's not a resource like it anywhere in the country.
